

Writing Guidelines

assemblyHUB seeks to provide top quality content from men and women of all ages, backgrounds and experiences. All contributors must be in fellowship at what is commonly known as a brethren assembly. Please mention the assembly you are in fellowship at when submitting your first article.

Submission

While we do not place a word limit on articles, as some topics require more explanation than others, the goal is to keep the articles concise and to the point. A good target to aim for is 500-600 words per post. If a topic requires a lot of explanation, the article can be broken down into a number of posts to cover the subject.

Please submit your articles to assemblyhub@gmail.com in the following formats: MS Word, Rich Text Format (RTF) or PDF.

If an article has been published previously we need written consent on behalf of the original publisher to repost the article on assemblyHUB. Any original article submitted to assemblyHUB must not be published elsewhere without the consent of assemblyHUB in writing. The author may make copies for their own personal use.

assemblyHUB prefers using NKJV, ESV, NIV and NLT translations however we are open to other translations if there is a personal preference.

Please note that formatting might not be posted the same as you send it. It's up to the discretion of the editors how the article is displayed on the website. The editors also have liberty to change the grammar or sentence structure of the article for the best understanding of the reader. If any article is changed significantly it will be sent back to the author for approval. No article will be changed in relation to doctrine, concept or teaching.

Author Bio

Please provide your city, state, assembly in fellowship at, an image and short description of yourself which will be placed at the bottom of your post.

Acknowledgements

The author acknowledges that they will be solely responsible for the content of the article published and will be sent feedback, both positive and negative, from readers of the website. Due to the open nature of the website differing views may be posted to give a balanced view of a specific subject.
